

ABSTRACT

A light source structure has a guidelight plate, a lighting unit with a lighting member and a plurality of lighting components respectively disposed on sides of the guidelight plate. According to particular locations of the lighting member and the lighting components, the light source structure is thin, small, and cheap, with the added benefits of a high luminance and a high uniformity thereof.